

My husband and I hope you allow cellphones on airplanes; it will allow us to conduct business en route when necessary. We don't see why allowing people to talk on cellphones is any different from allowing them to have conversations with fellow passengers while flying. Airlines could post signs about speaking at a polite volume if that seems necessary.